The Ostrow School of Dentistry of USC seeks applicants for a full-time, non-tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor of Clinical Dentistry. The selected candidate will have an appointment in the Division of Periodontology, Diagnostic Sciences and Dental Hygiene.

The selected candidate will teach in the Masters in Orofacial Pain and Oral Medicine Program, in addition to working on projects and assignments related to the program. Responsibilities will include managing the online classroom, facilitating and monitoring the video conferencing requirements for online weekly participation, quizzes, presentations, and course assignments, in addition to participating in the virtual classroom at least three times per week (including weekends.) Other duties will include participation and facilitation in the mandatory annual summer conference sessions for all students in the program, as well as overseeing the course management system (Blackboard), and provide training on how to facilitate learning in the online environment, and implementation of the Orofacial Pain and Oral Medicine online learning policies and procedures.

Candidates must have a DDS or DMD degree.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, complete curriculum vitae, and arrange to have at least three letters of reference sent to:
