The Herman Ostrow School of Dentistry of USC seeks applicants for a part-time, non-tenure-track position at the rank of clinical assistant professor in the Division of Dental Public Health and Pediatric Dentistry.

Responsibilities include providing clinical care to underserved children at an affiliated satellite dental clinic(s) and teaching at the predoctoral and postdoctoral levels, as part of a large-scale community project focusing on improving the oral health of children ages 0 to 5.

Candidates must have a DDS or DMD degree, be licensed to practice dentistry in the State of California, and have a Certificate of Specialization in Pediatric Dentistry. Past experience in treating children 0 to 5 years of age, special needs and underserved patients in an outpatient setting is required. Candidates with additional training and experience in community oral health are strongly encouraged to apply.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, complete curriculum vitae, and arrange to have at least three letters of reference sent to:
