USC GENERAL PRACTICE RESIDENCY PROGRAM

Herman Ostrow School Of Dentistry of USC supports a one-year Dental General Practice Residency Program that is fully accredited by the ADA Commission on Dental Accreditation. Four PGY1 positions are available. The program provides residents with didactic and clinical experience in medicine/dentistry in a hospital setting.

The program enables residents to gain knowledge and competence in both the medical and technical aspects of the delivery of dental care, fostering enhanced training. The GPR program provides a broad-based comprehensive general dentistry experience and serves as the foundation for individual growth and development.

CURRICULUM: CLINICAL

Residents take primary responsibility for delivery of comprehensive dental care to a culturally and medically diverse population of outpatients and inpatients. All dental disciplines are performed enabling provision of comprehensive dental care. Specialists and General Practice Attendings work with residents to ensure quality care of cases requiring complicated intervention (i.e., Endodontics, Periodontics, Implant Cases, Maxillofacial Prosthetics, Oncology Patients, etc.). The Program uses computerized records and digital imaging. Residents obtain operating room experience in providing general dental care and oral surgery. Continuity and quality of care is stressed.

Emphasis is placed on treatment of special patient populations (medically compromised, emotionally and physically disabled, developmentally disabled, and the geriatric population.)

Off-service rotations through the Emergency Room, General Anesthesia, Treatment of Disabled Patients, Primary Care Medicine and Pediatric Dentistry provide a solid hospital experience.

CURRICULUM: DIDACTIC

Residents attend daily lectures, seminars, and rounds provided through the Department of Dentistry, The Herman Ostrow School of Dentistry and The Veteran's Administration. The General Practice Residency Program is well integrated into the specialty programs. Topics include: Physical Diagnosis; Internal Medicine; Sedation; Oral Pathology; Anesthesia; Special Patient Care; Pain and Anxiety Control; Implant Dentistry; Removable and Fixed Prosthodontics, Periodontics, Endodontics, Hospital Administration and Organization; and Practice Management.

The program is fully integrated with other existing residencies: Primary Care Medicine; Family Practice; Radiology; Emergency Medicine; and Surgery.

DENTAL FACILITIES

The dental facilities at LA GEN and the Veterans Administration house fourteen operatories and the administrative office of the Dental Department. There is also an off-campus dental facilities at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital. Each dental facility is modern and well-equipped including fiber-optic handpieces and digital radiography. The dental facilities are networked for access to patient medical and dental records within their sites. This dental network plays an integral role in the multidisciplinary treatment and overall continuity of patient care. A chairside auxiliary is available for each resident. Overall we provide more than 5,000 patient visits per year.
